Infusion: sauna for a fuller intensity – perfected by KLAFS

The infusion is the highlight of every sauna bath. Ceremonies in commercial saunas are becoming increasingly popular, but the infusion is also becoming more and more part of beneficial relaxation in the home sauna. Apart from its meditative effect, how does the infusion have a positive effect on the body in terms of health? And why is the perfect wave technique crucial?

Water running over hot stones creates a soothing soundscape of splashing and sizzling whilst the evaporation increases the humidity and perceived temperature within the sauna. The methodical waving completes the infusion with its effective function: the air current generated distributes the water vapour evenly and whirls away the cooling protective layer that forms on the skin during perspiration therefore heated water vapour hits the skin directly and the body temperature rises. In turn this stimulates the vitalising turbo functions of the body and particularly trains the heart, blood circulation and immune system more intensively. What matters: Only when the air flow is directed specifically at the body, can the body's reactions be activated to the maximum and the health effect intensified.

Optimum air distribution with the automated wave function

The right wave procedure is therefore an art that needs to be mastered which is precisely why KLAFS has perfected the distribution of hot air in the SANARIUM[®] MAJUS stove with VITALITY BOOST. With its movable air waving system, the wave function can be adjusted to suit the individual sauna bather.

Wherever you sit or lay to relax in the sauna, the heat boost is always felt equally intensively and surrounds the entire body with its targeted airflow. The fast and effective distribution promotes a healthy increase in body temperature which allows the human body to activate its turbo function training for the heart, circulatory and immune systems even more strongly.

Best of all sauna bathers can lean back and enjoy with the integrated remote control, the infusion experience can be enjoyed in complete relaxation – the VITALITY BOOST can be simply activated with two words "HEY KLAFS" – or with the sauna control or start button in the cabin. It couldn't be more convenient to take a relaxing sauna.

Individual, customised infusions

Every body is different and a sauna infusion should be exactly what each individual needs. KLAFS has developed five different programmes allowing each ceremony to be individually designed. From a mild, warm air programme without moisture or a gentle wash of water to an intensive infusion of water you are in control of your sauna experience.

For the perfect feeling of wellness, natural fragrances or sauna oils are also essential, these can be combined with water to the storage container integrated in the heater. Water and fragrances such as lavender or rosemary oil are safely and evenly distributed over the stones with the built-in infusion tray adding a sensory sauna experience with soothing fragrances.
